

CONTRARIAN TAKE

Hiring developers is overrated in 2026.

At least for getting to a working product. Hear me out.

"You can't build without a team."

That used to be true. It is still the default advice every founder hears.

Here's what changed.

- One operator plus agents now does the work of a small team
- No hiring runway no payroll, no months of ramp-up
- The bottleneck moved from hands to judgment

When teams still win.

Scale, deep specialization, and 24/7 operations still need people.
Getting to a working v1 does not.

Three products. Zero hires.

Welbodi, LMIS, and Sprout, all built solo with AI agents.

YOUR MOVE

Agree?
Disagree?

Drop your take in the comments. I read every one.

DM me "MVP" if you want one built without the headcount.